References to both lunar and solar eclipses, or perhaps endless, starry nights, are obvious when light streams from the Hunt wall light. Designers Bjørn + Balle pair the square and the circle, playing with the interaction of light and shadow. The light fixture, which is cast in metal, consists of a rectangular wall plate and a circular dome. From the meeting between the two geometric shapes, the light escapes and settles like a soft aura of the square plate. The dome is perforated, and allows dots of lights to be released – resulting in a bright, starry sky.
